

Jan Dalsten Sørensen is Divisional Head of Digital Preservation at the National Archives of Denmark where he has been employed since 1999. He holds an MA in History and Latin from the University of Aarhus. Throughout his career at the archives he has participated in the theoretical and practical handling of digital records, especially appraisal and transfer and the development of regulations and requirements.

He represents the National Archives of Denmark in the DLM Forum and has written several articles and presentations on the work of the National Archives in the field of digital preservation.

Jan Dalsten Sørensen